 From Field to Fork: Sustainable Food Systems in Higher Education

The 3rd Annual From Field to Fork pre-conference will bring together food service managers, chefs, campus administrators, faculty, researchers, students, farmers, and professionals. We will explore cutting edge procurement, green business practices, and educational models geared toward increasing the sustainability of our campus operations, programs, and food system based learning. In focus sessions and together we will identify barriers and share challenges, establish innovative solutions and best practices, and create a vision of how campus food systems will be transformed over the next ten years. Join us for an incredible pre-conference event that will build your skills, expand your network, and bring concrete solutions and best practices to your campus and community.

Sunday, June 20, 2010 - 8:30 AM - 3:00 PM (Pacific Time)

$45.00

 BeyondFire Workshop

BeyondFire® is the concept of a built environment that minimizes its impact by producing and managing its own clean energy in a network of Sustainable Utility Nodes (SUN Buildings). In practice, BeyondFire is a responsible building code that mandates combining energy efficiency, on-site clean renewables, smart building and smart grid technology to provide 100% of the energy needed to live, work, and play.

The 2010 BeyondFire workshop will offer the first ever certification for SUN Professionals. This certification will add value by proving your skill set in the integrated design strategies required to create cost-effective and cutting-edge high performance buildings. In addition, SUN Professionals will receive discounts for future educational opportunities, they will pay less for SUN Building certifications, they will gain access to the BeyondFire research database, and they will be connected to the product and service networks needed to make SUN projects feasible. The workshop will provide a summary of everything you need to know to pass our Level 1 exam and the workshop will conclude with an opportunity to take the Level 1 exam at no added cost. Lastly, the annual membership fee of $50 will be waived for all workshop attendees.

Participants will receive a comprehensive review of design strategies, financing mechanisms, and implementation structures for successfully creating SUN buildings that add value, reduce costs, and minimize environmental impacts. Please note that our system is meant to enhance LEED certifications and to provide a simple, clear, and cheap process for understanding the impacts of energy.

Wednesday, June 23, 2010 - 9:00 AM - 3:00 PM (Pacific Time)

$99.00

 Sustainable Works Student Sustainability Workshops (SSW)

This workshop will present the successes and challenges coordinating a Student Sustainability Workshop (SSW). The SSW is an 8-9 week extracurricular program coordinated by Sustainable Works each semester. This workshop will detail our program and share best practices from 10 different colleges. The SSW is student taught workshop where students learn the problems/solutions relating to 6 sustainable topics: Water, Energy, Waste, Chemicals, Transportation and Shopping/Food. Students track their progress from the beginning to the end of the workshop, quantifying their dramatic environmental improvement. Workshop participants will learn how to establish this successful sustainability primer on their own campus.

Sunday, June 20, 2010 - 8:00 AM - 12:00 PM (Pacific Time)

$60.00

- Laboratory Stewardship: LabRATS Training for Comprehensive Energy and Resource Conservation in Laboratories

Restrictions: This workshop is only available to UC and CSU Faculty, Researchers, Staff, and Students.

Description: With their resource intensive operations, laboratories provide many opportunities for energy and resource conservation, yet occupant-based efficiency requires a team approach from all corners of campus. High performance requires scientists' understanding and enrollment, safety codes must be met, and energy upgrades and settings must be feasible for facilities staff and energy managers. This half-day workshop will highlight energy savings in plug load, lighting, and heating, ventilation and air conditioning that are available through this team approach. Participants will be provided with survey tools, website models, collaboration strategies, survey tools, internship descriptions, promotional stickers, signs, and template memos.

Teams of facilities or design staff, students, safety personnel and sustainability officers are encouraged to participate so an integrated approach can develop on your campus. The Laboratory Research And Technical Staff approaches at UC Santa Barbara and Davis will be highlighted, with more than eight different conservation programs highlighted that include water, green chemistry, solid waste, and surplus equipment. Workshop participants will be requested to bring their most pressing issues to develop strategies during the workshop.

Wednesday, June 23, 2010 - 8:00 AM - 1:00 PM (Pacific Time)
